Notre Dame's Five-year Plan for the Future

DEAR MEMBERS OF THE NOTRE DAME COMMUNITY,

I LIKE TO READ NOTRE DAME'S MISSION STATEMENT FREQUENTLY because it provides the compass against which everything we do is measured to make sure we are exactly on point. The very first line of this statement reminds us that our primary commitment is to educate our young women "for responsible living in a global society."

It is increasingly critical that Notre Dame young women learn how the larger world works, and that their education and faith will provide guidance for their understanding of the crucial and complicated issues of the day. Just as Saint Julie Billiart educated her students for their futures in post-revolutionary France, we need to ensure that our students are prepared to become citizens of this world. Our goals are the same: to teach our young women to become discerning, thoughtful, compassionate and courageous.

In this issue of Visions you will learn about the inauguration of a foreign exchange program with a school in Spain and the Notre Dame community's compassionate response to the tragedy in Haiti, two examples of our girls' reach well beyond the gates in Villanova. You will be proud of these young women!

Finally, I invite you to read the Academy's new Strategic Plan: Vision, Values & Promise. As a blueprint for the next five years, it reaffirms our commitment to living our mission statement and core values while we plan for the future. As always, your feedback on this issue of Visions is appreciated and encouraged.

Sincerely,

Veronica Collins Harrington
President

Exchange Program participants at Real Colegio Alfonso XII in Spain. Stephen Borish, Julian Venonsky, Andrew Molloy and JJ Moser from Malvern Prep with Notre Dame juniors Emily Hallinan, Lucy Spellacy and Madeline Tague.

THE GLOBAL REACH OF THE NOTRE DAME COMMUNITY

extended a bit further this year as three members of the junior class shared an experience of a lifetime during four weeks in Spain. Emily Hallinan, Lucy Spellacy and Madeline Tague took part in the Academy of Notre Dame's first foreign exchange program with students from Real Colegio Alfonso XII in San Lorenzo de El Escorial.

The exchange program was introduced to Notre Dame through an affiliation with Malvern Preparatory School. According to Notre Dame's Foreign Language Department Chair Rosemary Guarino, "Malvern had an established program and at the request of the director of the Colegio, approached us about hosting girls."

Intrigued, Guarino and Dean of Students Ellen Lipschutz, with the encouragement of Principal Dr. Joseph D'Angelo, began setting the groundwork for Notre Dame to participate. The exchange would be open to juniors taking Spanish IV Honors, Spanish V or AP Spanish. Interested students had to submit an application along with essays in English and Spanish to demonstrate a level of aptitude necessary for successfully studying abroad.

Hallinan, Spellacy and Tague were selected as the inaugural participants of the exchange program from numerous applicants. Each girl had her own reason for applying. "I've had a big interest in Spanish since the sixth grade," said Hallinan, who hopes to major in Spanish in college. "My dream is to live in Spain for a few years."

Spellacy thought the opportunity to host an exchange student was exciting and was looking forward to the experience. For Tague, whose love of Spanish found her considering summer programs abroad, "I wanted to live with a family instead of staying in a dorm and see how they live day-to-day."

Lucy Spellacy and Ana Pendás discuss their classes back at Notre Dame.

On December 28, the students boarded their flight and touched down in Madrid eight hours later. For the next four weeks, they attended classes at Real Colegio Alfonso XII and kept in touch with their Notre Dame classmates in Villanova through Skype.

To their surprise, the typical school day in Spain was very different from what they experienced in the States. Classes ran Monday through Friday from 9:00 a.m. until 5:00 p.m. with an hour and a half lunch break that allowed students to go home and return. Each class lasted approximately one hour and included students just from that grade, meaning that you would not find the equivalent of juniors and seniors sharing instruction.

Spellacy also noted that "the teachers changed classrooms between periods, the students didn't."

For Tague, the way the Spanish teachers interacted with students was vastly different from what she had experienced at Notre Dame. "The teachers just lectured much of the time, and there was not much interaction or conversation. And it was definitely harder to understand the teachers because they spoke so fast and directly."

Hallinan found herself observing the social differences in attending school abroad. "The students seemed less mature than what I am used to at Notre Dame. And the dynamic with teachers was definitely different."

After four weeks of broadening their educational horizons, the girls returned home. One month later, they welcomed Spanish exchange students Jimena Torres, Ana Pendás and Claudia Paz into their homes and classrooms.

Like their Notre Dame counterparts, the Spanish students admitted to feeling some apprehension. "I was afraid that I would not understand anything," said Torres in halting English.

Pendás was a bit more comfortable since Spellacy had been a guest at her home in Spain. Their reasons for participating in the program also resonated with the Notre Dame group. "I love English and I wanted to come to the United States to have more opportunities and experiences," said Paz.

Pendás' mother was excited to have an American in the house and wanted her daughter to improve her English and learn how other cultures lived. For Torres, "All my life I have wanted to study English in another country."

The Spanish guests found the educational environment at Notre Dame much to their liking. "I prefer the classes here," Paz remarked. "I like that it is all girls, the classes are more organized and less messy."

Outside the classroom, the Notre Dame hosts took their guests to social events such as the Hope for Haiti Open Mic Night and showed them what it was like being a high school student in the United States. After four weeks, the exchange students returned to Spain.

For all of the students involved, the exchange program brought a better appreciation and understanding of other cultures and fostered the realization that although they were geographically worlds apart, philosophically they were not. "I was nervous about there being more of a culture shock than there was," recalls Tague. "But I stayed with a 14 year-old girl who likes to go on the computer and do the same things I do. We're not that different."

A warm welcome at the airport for Notre Dame's world travelers.

A HEARTFELT THANK YOU FOR SERVICE TO NOTRE DAME

ON JUNE 2, 2010, the Academy of Notre Dame honored Board of Trustees Chair Cary W. Toner, who completed a distinguished four-year term which saw some of the most dramatic changes in the school's history.

During his tenure, the Board facilitated the purchase of the campus from the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur in February 2007. Ownership of the property allows the school to make significant investments in the Academy's programs and facilities while guaranteeing the continued dedication to the mission of the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur at the Villanova campus.

Cary oversaw the Academy's $10 million capital campaign, Teach Them What They Need to Know for Life, Notre Dame's most ambitious fundraising effort to date. The funds raised through the campaign financed the construction of the Harron Family Building, which was dedicated in November 2007. The spacious state-of-the-art facility houses the Aimee Willard Gymnasium, Connelly Library, additional classroom and meeting space, administrative offices and a fitness center, as well as serving as the school's main entrance. The campaign also funded several capital improvements throughout the campus and significantly increased the Academy's endowment.

In October 2008, Cary also presided over the inauguration of Academy President Veronica Collins Harrington and the installation of Principal Dr. Joseph F. D'Angelo. Commencing in January 2009, work began on the Academy's five-year strategic plan, Vision, Values and Promise. The leadership team continues to flourish under Cary's guidance.

Although completing his term as chair, Cary will remain a member of the Board of Trustees and serve as the chair of the Committee on Advancement and a member of the Strategic Plan team. Cary and his wife, Maryann, remain connected to Notre Dame as parents of graduates Kira '05 and Morgan '07.

"During Cary's tenure as Chair, the Academy faced many challenges and he was always there to meet and overcome them. Cary worked diligently to make the Academy a better place. We are all deeply grateful for the time, talent and expertise that he has brought to Notre Dame."

SISTER NANCY BONSHOCK, SND RECIPIENT OF 2010 SAINT FRANCIS MEDALLION

SISTER NANCY BONSHOCK, SISTER OF NOTRE DAME DE NAMUR and a long-time member of the Social Studies Department, has been named the 2010 recipient of the St. Francis Medallion by the Saint Francis Country House Women's Auxiliary.

The Medallion's objective is to identify and to recognize the outstanding accomplishments of a woman. The awarding of the St. Francis Medallion signifies and confirms the value of a woman's contribution to her community, Church and family. Sister Nancy exemplifies the highest, spiritual, moral and ethical standards. She leads others by example and inspires them by her commitment. Her life reflects the words of St. Francis, "for it is giving that we receive."

Sister Nancy has committed herself to the education of young Catholic women, and, for the past 35 years, has taught in the Social Studies Department at the Academy of Notre Dame de Namur.

She entered the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur at the age of 18, having just graduated from Notre Dame High School in Moylan, Pennsylvania. While in formation with the order, she received her bachelor's degree from Trinity College in Washington, D.C. Later, she taught at Little Flower High School in Philadelphia.

Sister Nancy moved to the Navajo reservation in Arizona where she taught for two years. She pursued an advanced degree and received her master's in anthropology from the University of Pennsylvania.

One of Sister Nancy's favorite titles for Mary is Mater Dolorosa (Mother of Sorrows). Sister Nancy has known tragedy in her own family. Her niece, Aimee Willard '92, was brutally murdered on June 20, 1996. Like Mater Dolorosa, Sister Nancy has stood by her sister, Gail Willard, throughout the ordeal of Aimee's death and the murder trial of the man guilty of the crime. Sister Nancy has taught classes on the church's moral teaching on the death penalty, and has lived that teaching in a way most people will never be called upon to do, standing firmly and publicly against the death penalty upon the 1998 conviction of the murderer of her niece.

Her struggle with cancer began in October of 1999. She was not declared cancer free until November of 2007 (although she still receives preventive chemotherapy for the disease). Throughout the duration of her illness, she often said, "I treat my cancer as if it is a chronic disease that I must live with." She was undaunted and arranged the treatment of her illness so that it would have the least possible impact on her teaching schedule. The year that she lost her hair due to chemotherapy, her students joined her in wearing hats and scarves as testimony to traveling her journey with her. She has also stated that she is alive today because of "prayer and poison" (the poison being the ravages of her chemotherapy).

According to colleagues and students, "Sister Nancy has been a voice for the voiceless, has a passion for justice, a love for the poor and a heart as wide as the world."

The Auxiliary will honor Sister Nancy Bonshock with the Medallion at the 96th Saint Francis Golden Ball, slated for Friday, December 3, 2010 at the Union League of Philadelphia.

The Saint Francis Country House is a skilled nursing facility in Southern Delaware County that was established in 1913 by the Archdiocese of Philadelphia. The Auxiliary supports the mission of the facility to serve God through service to their residents and community through volunteer efforts and fundraising.

A LIGHT IN THE DARKNESS

by ALICIA MENDICINO

ON JANUARY 12, 2010, AN UNSPEAKABLE TRAGEDY BEFELL THE NATION OF HAITI when an earthquake of catastrophic magnitude struck one of the region's most populated areas. The massive earthquake, which registered 7.0 on the Richter scale, had an epicenter located approximately 16 miles southwest of Haiti's capital, Port-au-Prince, an area with a population of over two million. Fatalities were estimated by the Haitian government to have reached 230,000 with 300,000 injured and over one million people left homeless. Over 250,000 residences and 30,000 commercial buildings were destroyed by what was eventually classified as the sixth deadliest quake in history. Haiti, already one of the poorest nations in the world, had been dealt a severe blow. In the face of this unimaginable disaster, the Notre Dame community immediately stepped forward. Current students and past parents joined together and discussed ways to support the people of Haiti in their time of extreme need. One past parent shared his extraordinary journey with us.

Dr. Anthony V. Coletta, parent of graduate Dr. Maria Coletta '98 and Executive Vice President and Chief Medical Officer of the Holy Redeemer Health System, had been volunteering at Centre de Sante Clinic in Croix des Bouquets, just outside of Port-au-Prince, for the past three years. At a conference in San Francisco when the news broke, Dr. Coletta immediately made plans to travel to Haiti from California. Christian Services International facilitated the travel arrangements so that Dr. Coletta could arrive quickly and begin treating victims and help with the immense task of coordinating the aid effort at the clinic.

Members of the Christian Services missionary team met Dr. Coletta upon his arrival and helped organize supplies at the clinic. While deciding upon the best course of action to treat the massive numbers of patients, the call came in that doctors and nurses were desperately needed at the Community Hospital of Haiti. Dr. Coletta observed, "There were already patients everywhere, lying on cardboard or dirty mattresses. You could sense the chaos."

Dr. Coletta quickly set to work in triage, treating those acutely injured and managing post-surgical patients. An experienced general surgeon, he thought it an odd use of his skills at first, but quickly realized "This was a place where clinical experience, basic examination skills, and timely decision making was more important at times than actually holding the scalpel."

Day four post-earthquake, the hospital was filling up and the system was breaking down. Patients' wounds were becoming contaminated with dirt and debris. IV bags were empty. There were no blood pressure cuffs. Orders were written on slips of paper instead of charts. There was very little oxygen and no pharmacy. Supplies were everywhere but there was no system to organize them. When word came that the hospital generator would be turned off from midnight until 2:00 a.m., Dr. Coletta put on his headlamp and continued to work with as many patients as he could. Volunteers also had to cope with aftershocks and sporadic gunfire. Supplies had continued to stream in, but basic human needs, such as water, were running short. Families were staying with patients, sharing mattresses

"It never ceases to amaze me how our young women respond to the needs of God's poor. The foundress of the Sisters of Notre Dame, Saint Julie Billiart, was passionate about forming young women 'with hearts as wide as the world.' The faces of Haiti stirred their hearts and I stand in awe at their creativity in finding a venue to make God's goodness known 1500 miles from home."

and eating meals. The question persisted: how were they to deal with the mass of humanity that had descended upon the hospital and yet treat those with the greatest need?

An aftershock at 6:00 a.m. that morning created a mass exodus of patients and families headed outdoors in fear of the hospital's collapse. While doctors and nurses worked to make sure the injured were being taken care of, Haitian hospital workers headed back inside to give the building a much-needed cleaning. By 9:00 a.m. patients were being moved back in and operations were back on track. Dr. Coletta reflected, "They say earthquakes are an act of God. This was an act of God. God had cleared this hospital and had done something we would never have been able to do, no matter how many able bodied men we had. The earthquake that morning got our patients out, either on their own or with their family and with our help."

On January 23, Dr. Coletta returned to the United States. He left the Community Hospital, which was at the time, clean and functioning. The arriving teams were highly skilled disaster medicine specialists with critical supplies in hand. In the words of Dr. Coletta, "I finally felt some hope where at times it had seemed hopeless."

Meanwhile at Notre Dame, members of the Campus Ministry Team brainstormed ways to aid the effort. Dr. Coletta's request for crutches and orthopedic devices such as braces and walkers turned into a very successful collection drive. With the help of other area schools such as Devon Prep, Malvern Prep, St. Denis School and Waldron Mercy, over 20 pallets of medical equipment were shipped to the clinic in Haiti.

The Campus Ministry Team was also aware of the Sisters of Notre Dame de Namur mission in Haiti and wanted to find a way to raise funds to support their aid efforts while involving a larger community.

Vous êtes portés dans

The Academy filled a van full of crutches and braces to be given to Haitian earthquake victims. This label, which translates from French as "You are brought into our hearts and our prayers. We send our hopes for healing and love with these crutches," was placed on every pair of crutches collected.

Dress down days would raise some money, but would limit the participation to Notre Dame students. Campus Ministry team executives Julie Savelloni '10 and Adrienne Ashton '10 came up with the idea of an Open Mic Night. The seniors created a Facebook page and invited students from Malvern Prep, St. Joe's Prep, Devon Prep, the Haverford School, Episcopal, Villa Maria, Sacred Heart, and other local schools to participate and attend. There was tremendous enthusiasm for the venture, and well over 500 students and guests came together to share their musical talents. Throughout the course of the three-hour event, over 35 musical and dance acts performed on stage. A minimum $5 donation was collected at the door and each guest was given a bracelet with inspiring words such as "hope" and "love" printed on them. Campus Ministry Team members also sold refreshments during intermission. When the evening was completed, over $3,000 had been raised for the Sisters' mission in Haiti.

On March 12, Dr. Coletta visited the Academy of Notre Dame to thank the community for their support. He shared his remarkable story with students, faculty and guests who had gathered to hear about his journey and experiences in the first days after the earthquake. Accompanying Dr. Coletta's talk were his personal photographs of the disaster, powerfully showing the human faces of those touched by the tragedy. The silence in the gymnasium was a testament to the weight of the subject and also the awe-inspiring realization of how one person and a faith-filled community can make a difference in the world.

STRATEGIC PLAN 2010-2015

The Academy of Notre Dame is pleased to share our five-year strategic plan, Vision, Values & Promise, with alumnae, parents and friends. President Veronica Collins Harrington and Board Chair Cary Toner led the fifteen-month planning process to position Notre Dame to successfully meet the challenges and opportunities of the future. The plan will serve as a guide as we continue to enhance the curriculum and campus in a way that supports our mission and our students. We are grateful for the thoughtful input and diligent efforts contributed by the many team members and the entire Notre Dame community. The real work is now beginning. We invite you to examine the plan and reflect on the direction of this fine academic institution, and perhaps even consider what your role may be. As always, your feedback is invaluable. The Board of Trustees, administration, alumnae, faculty and staff, parents, and students look forward to continued collaboration in bringing our strategic vision to reality.

President Harrington welcomes your feedback at vharrington@ndapa.org.

I am proud of the strong curriculum that the Academy of Notre Dame offers our students and feel challenged to build upon this curriculum as we continue to center on critical thinking and problem solving, and with the Academy's commitment to the most current technologies, students will have new tools to discover the world around them.

Theresa McCoy
DEPARTMENT CHAIR, SOCIAL STUDIES

The strategic plan will go a long way toward making the school more sustainable and in helping to prioritize strategies that will enable us to provide our students with the best possible educational experience for the future.

THE ACADEMY OF NOTRE DAME'S HIGH SCHOOL WINTER INDOOR AND SPRING OUTDOOR TRACK TEAMS WENT THE DISTANCE THIS YEAR, earning titles and accolades and beating some of the perennial track powerhouses in the state – all without having track facilities on campus and having a high school enrollment of less than 400.

Led by head coach Jenn Messner Holdren '99 and assistant Laura O'Donnell, the winter indoor squad finished second in the state at the Pennsylvania Indoor State Championships for the second year in a row, competing against every public, parochial and private school in the state. The team ran throughout the campus during the season, and when the weather turned bad, made use of the hallways and staircases in the Harron Family Building. By the end of the season, Notre Dame had recorded some of the top times in the state in various events and Maura McKendrick '10, Ayanna Fields '10, Ann Kelly '10, and Katie Nappi '12 were named to the PA Indoor All State team.

The outdoor season picked up right where indoor left off, with the Irish finishing first in the Pennsylvania Independent School State Championships for the second year in a row. The team turned in several of the top times in the region and in the entire state, and Coach Holdren was named Southeastern Pennsylvania Coach of the Year. Seniors Ann Kelly and Maura McKendrick were named to the All State Team and the All Southeast PA team. Maria Seykora '12 won the mile and two mile in the Delaware County Championships and was first team All Delco along with Kelly and McKendrick.

With a bevy of talent returning next year, the teams will seek to capitalize on their momentum and continue to turn heads in the competitive track community.

About the Coaches

Coach Jenn Messner Holdren '99 was an accomplished multi-sport athlete while at Notre Dame, winning the Aimee Willard Award in 1999. According to Athletic Director Tina O'Malley, "The team emulates her intensity and positive winning attitude, putting them at the top in Delaware County and the state. And Coach Laura O'Donnell has done a tremendous job with our distance runners."

O'Donnell was one of the top distance runners in the US while at the University of Pittsburgh. She leads a young crop of outstanding distance runners led by rising junior Maria Seykora and looks forward to great things as the fall cross country season approaches.

GRADUATION 2010

On June 5, the Academy awarded diplomas to 96 seniors during graduation exercises on the Mansion Lawn. Agnes Gillin Gayhardt '83 (pictured top left), delivered the commencement address, encouraging the graduates to "Cherish your diploma, it represents a Notre Dame education, which is both a gift and a privilege you have earned."

On June 6, the Junior School graduated 50 students from its eighth grade class during a ceremony in the Aimee Willard Gymnasium. Congratulations, graduates!

Willard earned numerous honors including All-Delco and All-Main Line for soccer and basketball and was consistently featured as an Athlete of the Week for the Main Line Times and the Delaware County Daily Times. Upon graduation, Aimee accepted a soccer scholarship to George Mason University and went to the NCAA Final Four her sophomore year. She was recruited to play on the newly-formed lacrosse team and became a two sport Division 1 athlete, garnering All-CAA (Colonial Athletic Association) honors for soccer and lacrosse and All-American status for lacrosse.

Paige Driscoll Syron '94

ATHLETIC HALL OF FAME

The Academy of Notre Dame has announced the creation of an Athletic Hall of Fame to recognize the accomplishments and contributions of student-athletes, coaches, and associated persons whose participation in Notre Dame athletics has brought distinction and honor to the program. The inaugural class for the Athletic Hall of Fame will be inducted during an awards banquet on Friday, November 5, 2010, in the Aimee Willard Gymnasium. The Athletic Hall of Fame Committee takes special pride in presenting these awards on behalf of the entire Notre Dame community.

The inaugural alumnae inductees include: Aimee Willard '92, Paige Driscoll Syron '94 and Jennifer Messner Holdren '99. In addition to the three alumnae inductions, the ceremony will also include the induction of Faith Bascome and Jo Trexler, two coaches who promoted and expanded athletics at Notre Dame.

According to Notre Dame's Athletic Director, Tina O'Malley, "The Athletic Hall of Fame seeks to inspire us by identifying the very best athletes in the history of our school. Recognizing these special individuals allows us to celebrate the tradition and mission of Notre Dame. Aimee Willard is a perfect choice to be our first inductee—Aimee's short life was filled with strength and pride and has had an immensely positive impact on Notre Dame alumnae and current students. These talented alumnae have left a legacy of dedication and sportsmanship."

Glenn Blumenthal, co-chair of our Athletic Hall of Fame Committee stated, "The achievement of our Athletic Hall of Fame inductees will inspire our current student athletes to strive for excellence—both on and off the athletic field."

Faith Bascome and Jo Trexler †

Widely regarded as the founders of the athletic program at Notre Dame, Faith Bascome and Jo Trexler were physical education and health teachers and coaches who were athletes themselves. In 1978, Notre Dame only had two sports teams: basketball and field hockey. Faith and Jo started the soccer, tennis, softball, track and lacrosse programs and expanded teams in soccer, field hockey and lacrosse to allow maximum participation among students. During their 20-year careers, they coached the field hockey, tennis and lacrosse teams and created summer sports camps at Notre Dame.

Saint Julie Award

Kelly also serves on the Board of Directors of the Christopher Robert Clarke Foundation, established in memory of her brother who died on 9/11 in the World Trade Center.

Upon receiving the Saint Julie Award, Kelly said, "The years that each of my sisters and I spent here at the Academy of Notre Dame helped shape a solid value system, a strong moral compass, enormous capacity to think of others before ourselves, and to expand our vision beyond our own community. My parents believed strongly in a Catholic education, which was a stabilizing force in my life. Like Saint Julie Billiard, I strongly believe in empowering those who are disenfranchised, to value and support those in times of darkness, and to be a guiding light for those who have lost their way."

Notre Dame Launches New Website

On May 14, the Academy of Notre Dame announced the launch of its newly-redesigned website at www.ndapa.org.

The Academy partnered with finalsite, a Connecticut-based company, which provides private and independent schools with web software and solutions such as website design, content management systems and portal software.

Notre Dame's new site boasts a user-friendly navigational structure, a vibrant online community for alumnae, interactive calendars, a dynamic multimedia gallery, online application capability and much more.

The launch represented the culmination of months of committee work in selecting fonts, colors, photo treatments and content.

"We wanted to make sure we captured the energy and spirit of the Academy while creating a user-friendly site that reflected the exciting changes that are happening here," says Alicia Mendicino, the Academy's Director of Communications. "We now have a first-class website to represent the first-class education offered at Notre Dame."

All Alumnae Welcome!

NDA AWARD 2010

Please submit your nomination for the 2010 NDA Award to the alumnae office by September 30th (see p. 20 for a description of this award).

ALUMNAE PATHWAY TO LEARNING

With the installation of 18 new engraved bricks in August, the Alumnae Pathway to Learning continues to expand. By purchasing a brick for yourself or to honor an alumna daughter, sister, or classmate, you perpetuate the legacy of a Notre Dame education as well as help to grow NDA's endowment to support scholarship aid. Purchase a brick online today for $250. For more information, go to ndapa.org (Supporting NDA / Endowment) or contact the alumnae office.

ALUMNAE COMMUNICATIONS GOING GREEN

In an effort to reduce paper consumption, NDA is issuing many alumnae news bulletins as well as invitations to local and regional events via e-mail only. Please make sure the alumnae office has your current contact information, most especially your e-mail address. Simply send an e-mail to alumnae@ndapa.org with your name and class year.

If you have a seasonal address and would like your mail redirected during certain months, please let us know. This helps us both to save money on postage and to plan regional events (e.g., Florida in winter, New Jersey beaches in summer).

EDUCATIONAL IMPROVEMENT TAX CREDIT PROGRAM

The Oliver Family: Jacinto, Andrew, Elisa '11, Isabel, Christina '13, Catherine, and Beth.

The Kirkman Oliver Company of Newtown Square participates in the Pennsylvania Educational Improvement Tax Credit Program (EITC) for the benefit of Notre Dame.

Jacinto and Beth Oliver's accountant advised them to take advantage of EITC because it allows them to make a sizable charitable contribution to Notre Dame at a minimal out-of-pocket cost. In addition, Beth underscores that "it is a fantastic opportunity for us to direct almost all of our state tax dollars directly to Catholic education."

Since 2005, seventeen Pennsylvania businesses have collectively given almost $600,000 for scholarship aid to Notre Dame through EITC. While the main reason they participate in the program is to help deserving students afford a Notre Dame education, the significant state tax credits received by these businesses make it a win-win proposition.
